Military alliances are formal agreements between two or more nations to either defend each other in case of an attack (defensive) or to send aid, troops, and other support if their ally enters into a war (offensive). Military alliances such as the Greek Delian League have formed since ancient times. Today alliances including NATO, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, continue to impact the world. In the years leading up to World War I alliances were another factor that increased tensions which eventually led to war.
